Around the World on Two Wheels: An Epic Adventure by Motorcycle

In the annals of adventure travel, the name Ewan McGregor stands tall. The Scottish actor and motorcycle enthusiast has embarked on some of the most ambitious and challenging motorbike journeys ever undertaken, including a six-month, 18,000-mile ride from London to New York City in 2004. But it was his subsequent journey, a two-year, 49,000-mile circumnavigation of the globe, that truly cemented his status as a legendary adventurer.

In 2007, McGregor set off from London on a custom-built BMW R1200GS motorcycle, accompanied by his friend and fellow actor Charley Boorman. The pair rode through nearly 50 countries across five continents, encountering a vast array of cultures, landscapes, and challenges along the way. Their journey was chronicled in the popular television series Long Way Round and the subsequent book of the same name.
