Word roots are the basic building blocks of words. They're typically one or two syllables long and they have a specific meaning. For example, the word root "port" means "to carry." This root can be found in a variety of words, such as "portable," "transport," and "export."

Prefixes are added to the beginning of words to change their meaning. For example, the prefix "un-" means "not." This prefix can be added to words like "happy" to create the word "unhappy."

Suffixes are added to the end of words to change their part of speech. For example, the suffix "-ly" is used to create adverbs. This suffix can be added to words like "quick" to create the word "quickly."

By understanding word roots, prefixes, and suffixes, you can learn new words more easily and you can also understand the meaning of words that you don't know.

There are a number of different ways to learn new words. Here are a few tips:

- Read widely. The best way to learn new words is to read a lot. When you read, pay attention to the unfamiliar words and look them up in a dictionary. You can also use a flashcard app to help you remember new words.
- Use new words in your writing and speaking. The best way to learn new words is to use them. When you write or speak, try to use new words that you've learned. This will help you to remember them and it will also make your writing and speaking more interesting.
- Take a vocabulary class. If you're struggling to learn new words on your own, you can take a vocabulary class. Vocabulary classes can help you to learn new words in a structured way and they can also provide you with feedback on your progress.

By following the tips in this study guide, you can improve your vocabulary and prepare for success on the SAT, ACT, and GRE. Remember, the key to learning new words is to be consistent with your studies. Make time to read every day and use new words in your writing and speaking. The more you practice, the easier it will become to learn new words.
